

Job Vacancy

Rehabilitation Engineer

Are you innovative, enthusiastic and loyal?

Then this vacancy could be for you!

An exciting vacancy has arisen to join the Felgains seating & positioning team, to further develop and support this division of the business.

Felgains were established over 30 years ago in the healthcare industry. The company has evolved over the years and currently focuses on specialist patient handling systems and seating and positioning products and continues to build upon its strong brand values, providing equipment to the NHS and other sectors within the industry throughout UK. The existing team is passionate about providing solutions to people with special needs to impact on the level of care they receive and in turn, quality of life.

The role will include carrying out joint visits with therapists in the community and the wheelchair clinics including handovers, and reviews. The majority of work will be out in the "field", face to face with clients and service users. A vehicle will be included in the package and all the necessary training. We are currently recruiting for Rehabilitation Engineers in a few regions throughout UK – all regions will be considered.

If you are interested in this vacancy, please apply by sending a current CV, including a note of all qualifications and with a covering letter to: alan@felgains.com
